BLOODSHED!

A Scrimmage With a Band of Thieving Blackfeet.

William Thompson Shoots an Indian Through the Breast.

And Saves His Companion from being Brained with an Axe.

Wednesday afternoon, William Thompson, a rancher on High River, came into town and gave himself up to the Mounted Police. He gave the following information. He was away about six miles from home making hay when word was brought that his house was open. He at once returned to his house accompanied by Mr. Tucker Peach, one of his workmen, and found that the place had been ransacked by Indians. They went to the Indian camp and demanded to see their passes which was refused. They asked the Indians to give up the stolen goods but that was also refused. They then began to gather the stolen things, which were lying around, together when the Indians became angry and seized axes, etc., rushed on the white men. The latter dropped their goods and prepared to defend themselves. One of the Indians had a revolver which he had stolen from Thompson's house. He fired at Peach and shot him in the left arm. Another Indian then rushed at Peach with an axe and would have brained him, but Thompson raised his revolver and fired. The Indian dropped, shot through the centre of the body, just below the ribs. The Indian with the revolver kept firing at Thompson till the revolver was empty. The Indians then withdrew, taking the wounded brave with them, and Thompson, after putting his things in shape, went to the Industrial School with Peach to get his arm dressed. Thompson then came straight to the Police barracks and reported.

Col. Herchmer immediately despatched a doctor and a detachment of police to the scene of the struggle, Thompson accompanying them. As soon as they returned an investigation will be held. Mr. Magnus Begg arrived from Blackfoot Crossing this morning with one of the band that attacked Thompson. The wounded Indian is very low and is not expected to live. Peach's wound is not serious. The general opinion is that the Indians got less than they deserved, and that Thompson would have been justified in dropping a few more of the thieving rascals.

WINNIPEG.

WINNIPEG, August 26—A large party of Ontario farmers arrived here this morning. They are going west to spy out the country.

WINNIPEG, August 26—Rumors were current yesterday of an injunction having been issued to prevent the construction of the Red River Valley railroad over the Browning lots in Morris, and will probably be issued today.

Attorney General Hamilton says he has instructed the sheriff not to regard the injunction crisis which is evidently approaching.

WINNIPEG, August 26—The Provincial police have gone to Morris to arrest a man named Jenkins who has been making threats that the graders of the Red River Valley railroad would not be allowed to cross his property.

WINNIPEG, August 26—The Rocky Mountain telegraph, which is to connect with the Canadian Pacific system at Medicine Hat, is making strong opposition to the Western Union in Montana. This company is affording strong relief and is of vastly superior service to the public. The wires have been cut in many places and hundreds of yards of it stolen.

Word has been received in this city that James Prince, the young fellow who outraged and eleven years old girl at Headship's Ferry, escaped from the officer in whose custody he was placed. Officer McGowan has been sent to hunt for the man.

WINNIPEG, August 26—The contractors on the Red River Valley railroad anticipated an injunction last Saturday afternoon and graded the Red River Valley road across Browning's lots at Morris. The grading will be continued as usual. The C. P. R. lawyers say if they get an injunction they will apply it to the laying of rails.

WINNIPEG, August 26—The Red River Valley railway difficulty assumed a new phase today when an application was made on behalf of Sir D. A. Smith to prevent the road crossing the two Browning lots near Morris. This will open up another legal fight. Probably the road will be built before the lawyers get through.

WINNIPEG, August 26—Jenkins, the owner of property near Morris crossed by the Red River Valley railroad, is moving for an injunction.

WINNIPEG, August 26—Premier Norquay speaking in Toronto says: "We are now in a great crisis and you can readily understand that we must not make known anything of our opponents can make anything of. We have managed so far to checkmate our opponents, and that of course is because we did not let them get in advance of what we were going to do." Crop reports from all parts of the province and counties indicate that the wheat harvest is nearly completed. The average yield is between 25 and 30 bushels to the acre.

WINNIPEG, August 26—The C. P. R. magnates arrived in the city last night, and today they left for Glenora and Deloraine. They will return east tomorrow evening. While at Deloraine they will decide the question of extending the Southwestern this season.

OTTAWA, August 26—A cable is published attributing to Sir John Macdonald the statement that Imperial troops had been demanded for the suppression of any resistance by Manitoba to the disallowance decision. It is attracting considerable attention, though the statement is wholly discredited in well informed Canadian quarters. Nevertheless, it is calculated to cause mischief among the British public generally.

OTTAWA, August 26—The English press declare that England cannot allow the use of Canadian troops in enforcing orders of the Manitoba courts, and demand that steps be taken to prevent the Dominion authorities from committing the mistake of authorizing military interference to discipline Manitoba in the Red River Valley railway. The Pall Mall Gazette severely condemns the attitude of the Dominion government and quotes many precedents to prove its untenable character.

The Gros Ventres who have been jailed for a year were released. Insp. THE C. P. R. SHOPS

A DEPUTATION WAIT ON THE TOWN COUNCIL.

Just as the council got nicely settled down to work last night they were disturbed by heavy steps on the stairs and presently about a dozen prominent citizens filed into the chamber and solemnly rang themselves around the wall. They were Messrs. Jas. Reilly, Barber, J. L. Bowen, W. T. Ramsey, J. C. F. Bowen, A. Grant, Jos. Hannerman and R. H. Moody. Dead silence reigned for a moment and then Mayor King asked what they wanted and invited them to speak. Mr. Reilly intimated that they had something important to communicate and said Mr. Bowen would be spokesman. The latter thereupon stated that they had waited on the council for the purpose of inducing them to make every effort to secure the location of the C. P. R. machine shops at Calgary. Mr. Bowen referred to the benefit that works employing from 300 to 400 men would be to the town, and said that if a money bonus, or any other inducement the town could offer, would influence the company in favor of Calgary, the deputation and the citizens generally would support the council in giving it. He thought the C. P. R. should be communicated with on the subject. Messrs. Reilly, Grant, Hannerman and Bowen also spoke in favor of negotiations being opened. Coun. Martin said the council recognized the importance of the matter but he did not think it wise for the council to give itself away, as perhaps they would get the shops without a bonus. He knew Supt. Whyte was in favor of Calgary. The Mayor promised that Mr. Whyte would be communicated with at once.

A GORGEOUS PALACE.

Description of the Charming Mango-Garden of the King of Siam.

The Summer Palace of the King, the Mango Gardens, is considered the handsomest place in Siam. The main building is erected in the style of a French chateau, and is surrounded with grounds laid off with great skill by a landscape gardener, paths winding in serpentine sinuosity in every direction, flowers of all kinds fill the air with perfume, and to add to the charms of the place miniature lakes, dotted over with lotus plants in blossom, flash their sparkling waters in the sunshine.

These lakes are fed from the river that flows in front of the palace, which together with the yard is enclosed by a wall containing a number of handsome buildings set apart for the various wives of the King. Through the kindness of the gardener in charge I was shown through the palace, the King being absent he not staying there more than a month during the year.

The palace is built of teak and other costly woods, the walls paneled most handsomely; the hard wood polished like a mirror, bringing out the grain; the ceiling lofty, laid off in handsome designs and most elaborately gilded; the floors a mosaic of various woods also highly polished, each room a different design, while the broad flight of steps that lead to the second story—the sleeping apartments—is simply grand, in keeping with the magnificence of the interior.

The King's chamber, bath-rooms, etc., were worthy of the abode of royalty, and his couch 'a thing of beauty,' if not 'a joy forever.' It was made of rare wood and carved in the most exquisite designs, draped with rare lace fringed with gold; a gold embroidered spread covered the bed; the pillows and bolsters were also hemmed with lace, and above it swung a handsome punka to keep him cool. It seemed more like a work of art to please the eye than the resting place of one who courted slumber, surcease of business and trouble arising from the control of over 7,000,000 people.

In some of the rooms we noticed some very handsome furniture and pictures, costly tables, crystal and alabaster vases, etc., though the place was dismantled during the absence of royalty. It is a place that one tired of power and the world would retire to for a month and live in elysium or Oriental ease. In the center of several of the lakes handsome pavilions are erected, where the band discourses music, and on their rippling surface float barges ready to bear the wives and children or family of the King, when he concludes to pass his time there.

Scattered throughout the gardens are cages containing monkeys, birds, etc., that add not a little to the picturesqueness of the scene. For over an hour our party strolled through the well-kept grounds and gardens, fifty men being constantly employed in beautifying and keeping them in order. About a grove of rarest foliage, musical with birds, is a handsome Italian monument, erected to the memory of the late Queen, who was drowned by the sinking of a yacht, erected by the King and by his special direction kept in the neatest order.

As our time was limited we could see but a portion of the beauties of this lovely place. It would take a column to speak at length of the various palaces that are scattered over the grounds, the Oriental watch and bell-tower that stands like a giant sentinel towering over all, the handsome, wat, built like a Gothic cathedral, with stained glass windows, but the shrill whistle of our steam launch reminds us that "time is up," and with a sigh of regret, our party left the lovely Mango Gardens, its world of flowers, its fragrant atmosphere and paradisaical beauty—an elysium where one could dream life away, the Serpentine of the poet, where no raven will ever "sit on pallid bust of Pallas," but eternal sunshine gilds the velvet curtains and casts a glory on the glistening floors.

Money Saved by a Fly.

Here is a story from the Companion, showing how a blue-bottle fly was the means of saving much work and expense:

"Flies are most useful scavengers, for they destroy much matter which is injurious to man. They lay their eggs in decaying animal substances, and these hatch out in a very short time. The young flies begin to eat as soon as they are hatched, and soon eat up the decayed matter. It is said that the progeny of two blue-bottle flies will eat up a dead horse more quickly than one lion could perform the task."

There have a wonderful scent. If a piece of decayed meat is placed in an open place where there are no flies, it will not be long before a troop of flies will be crawling over it. An ingenious man once made a fly serve him. A poisoned rat had crawled under the floor of a gentleman's dining-room, and died there. The room, which had been fitted up at great expense, became uninhabitable, and workmen were called in to remove the flooring. But one of the men suggested that if a blue-bottle fly should be turned into the room, it would find the exact spot where the dead rat was lying. The fly, being caught and turned in, buzzed about the room for some time. At last it alighted upon a certain spot on the floor, and remained there.

"There's where your dead rat is!" the workman said. A single board was removed and the rat was exposed to view. The fly had scented the body through the crack in the floor.

Lesson XX of the International Series (Third Quarter) for Sunday, Aug. 22. Text of the Lesson, Matt. vi. 1-18. Golden Text, 1 Samuel xvi. 17.

V. 1. This verse is a statement of the general principle which is illustrated in what follows. The Revised Version has properly introduced the word "righteousness" instead of "alms." The best critics are agreed in this change. Righteousness here is not the righteousness of Christ; it means rectitude, right doing, conformity to the will of God.

Vs. 2-4. Here we have the first illustration of the application of the principle to alms giving. The change from the plural to the singular then individualizes the thought. Not sound a trumpet.—It is supposed that it was the custom of the Pharisees literally to sound a trumpet and so call together the poor; others think the reference is to the trumpet-shaped money boxes and the shaking of the coin as it fell into them. But all these suppositions are far fetched. Hypocrites.—The word originally meant those who wore a mask and performed a part. This is the classical usage. As the composition of the word suggests, they were dissemblers. In the synagogues.—Here religious assemblies were held at which offerings were made. In the streets.—Where beggars gathered and where gifts were bestowed. Have their reward.—Of course they have. Men generally get what they seek. Literally, this is their full reward.

V. 5. Left hand.—This doubtless was a proverb. The privacy was to be so great that one member of the body was not to know what another member did. This is as if the right hand slipped out the gift so quietly and quickly that the left hand was ignorant of the act.

V. 6. This verse indicates the true method; it gives the positive direction. In secret—in a secret place. God will see. Thy Father.—The individuality of the deed is still suggested by the statement regarding the reward.

Vs. 7-13. We now have the second illustration of the application of the general principle of doing good without ostentation. This is in regard to private prayer. The remarks made are not to be applied to common prayer or public worship.

V. 7. Hypocrites pray to be seen of men, but when ye pray there is to be another motive. Dr. Broadus calls attention to the fact that throughout this passage the plural is used in general injunctions and the singular in pointed applications. No criticism is here made on the standing posture in prayer. It is ostentation which is condemned. The corners of the streets.—The crowded thoroughfares, the broadways, this is the idea, were admirable places for such ostentatious display.

V. 8. Now comes the positive side of the teaching, the pointing out of the true method. Thou.—The singular form for the sake of a pointed personal application. Closet.—Literally, storeroom and so a place of privacy; an innermost apartment. In the Revised Version it is rendered "inner chamber," sometimes the upper chamber (Acts, ix, 37, 40, 42). By thy closet may be meant a place under one's own control. No Christian can be strong among men except he be often alone with God. Shut thy door.—Not only must the door be closed, but, as is implied, fastened; this suggests the greatest privacy. No rebuke is intended for family, social or more public prayer. Every man's own heart may be his closet. Openly is to be omitted.

Vs. 9-14. Ye.—Our Lord now comes to speak of prayer in its varied relations in life, and so uses the plural. Prayer is liable to other dangers than ostentatious display; another fault in prayer is vain repetition. One practice has been condemned—the pharisaical practice; the other is the heathen practice which is to be condemned. Vain repetitions.—The word so translated occurs nowhere else in the New Testament. Some have thought that it is derived from the name Baitus, a Cyprian king mentioned by Herodotus, who was noted for his stammering; others derive it from a poet of that name whose poetical effusions abounded in repetitions.

V. 15. Now we come to the model prayer; this is its true name. The true Lord's Prayer, our Lord's intercessory prayer, is found in John, xiv. chapter. The prayer here is rather the disciples' prayer, although the common name is found as early as A. D. 200. For simplicity, comprehensiveness and spirituality, this prayer must ever be a model. There is nothing said of the mediatorial work of Christ, or asking in his name, but these elements could not be present at this stage in his life and teaching. The prayer is adapted to the time when it was uttered. It is not given as a form to be always and necessarily used; it is to serve as a specimen of acceptable prayer. In Luke we have it with important variations, showing that it was not intended as an invariable form. So far as we know Christ did not himself use this form, neither did the apostles. The prayer falls into two divisions of three petitions each. The first class of petitions—like the first table of the law—refers to God and our relations to him. The second—like the second table of the law—to ourselves and our relations to one another. We are to pray for God's glory before we pray for our own bread. Our Father.—The plural is used throughout the prayer, because the prayer is social rather than secret. God is our Father by creation, preservation, and especially so by adoption. Our share in the brotherhood of man, as well as the fatherhood of God, heaven.—More accurately, in the heaven. This is a Hebrew usage very common in the New Testament. Hallowed.—The Anglo-Saxon word often used in translating the Old Testament, but only here and in Luke ii, 2, in the New Testament. It is a prayer that God's name may be exalted and treated as sacred, sanctified and reverenced by our works, words and thoughts.

V. 16. Thy kingdom come.—God's kingdom is his reign; the administration of Jesus Christ. To offer this petition right is to labor and to give for the spread of the Gospel, for the conversion of the world. Thy will.—This includes all which God purposes and commands. Strictly, "be done" means to come to pass. The order in the Revised Version is worthy of notice. "As in heaven, so on earth." That is, as fully, joyously and universally as it is done by angels. Beugal notes that in the first three petitions we have the the end in the others as its means.

V. 17. Daily bread.—With this verse the second division of the prayer begins, and petitions for us are now offered. Bread stands for food in general. To the Lord Jesus God gave daily manna. This is a prayer primarily for the body. The man who is too busy to work ought not to use this prayer.

V. 18. Debt.—Our chief need is forgiveness of our sins. Our hearts ought to give their supreme love to God. They have failed to do this; God, therefore, has claims upon us. This obligation must be discharged by us or atonement be made by another. Our failure is our sin, and it is here represented as a debt.

V. 19. This is the sixth and last petition. Lead us not.—We need not simply forgiveness for past sins, but also preservation for the future. This word lead, or "bring," as in the Revised Version, has caused many serious questionings. Can God lead men into temptation? The prayer asks that God would so control our affairs that neither Satan nor any of his agents may lead us astray; and, as all things are under God's control, he may be said to lead us into temptation. Temptation, trial. This may be a test of one's character or faith or love; or the word may be used to mean a direct solicitation to sin. In this latter sense God tempts no man (James i, 13); but he does test, try, prove men as he did Abraham and others (Gen. xxii, 1; Ex. xv, 25; Deut. xiii, 9). Deliver.—This is the positive side of the former petition. Evil,—is perhaps the evil one. This, however, cannot be absolutely determined; but as all evil comes from the evil one, the meaning is substantially the same.

V. 14. For, etc.—This petition of the prayer is taken up a second time and emphasized, showing the importance of forgiveness. Trespass.—The figure of the 13th verse is here changed to that of a fall or a false step. Sin is a deviation from the straight line of right as well as a failure to meet our obligations to God.

POINTS TO BE REMEMBERED.
1. True religion avoids all ostentation. Its home is in the heart; its fruit is in the life.
2. No man can long deceive God or men.
3. "For Jesus' sake" is the true motive in all benevolence.
4. Secret prayer is a necessity to a true life.
5. We must be willing to grant forgiveness to others if we would receive forgiveness from God.

THE Tribune seeks to escape from its unenviable position on the Shaw affair by pleading that

"What we were trying to emphasize was that the whole system of the enforcement of law and order in this country is not what it should be."

Our contemporary tried to do nothing of the kind; it simply misrepresented the finding of the coroner's jury for the purpose of casting a slur on the actions of the Crown Prosecutor, the Judge and the Minister of Justice. Simply that and nothing more.

A Few Notes About the Lower Park—A Lovely Place.

NATIONAL PARK, August 22.—During the visit of Mr. Van Horne and party last week it is generally understood that they located the new station that is to be built here, but as yet the exact site is kept secret, therefore all the corner lot speculators are on the qui vive to get the first information, as it is supposed the town will grow in that direction.

The first bricks that have been made in the Rocky Mountains were burned in Mr. Brealey's brickyard last week, and when the kiln was opened on Saturday it was found to contain a most excellent sample of white brick, fully equal to Winnipeg brick, and Mr. John Little, of Winnipeg, who is Mr. Brealey's brickmaker, says that having now thoroughly tested the clay he can turn out a sample of brick that cannot be surpassed in the country.

The iron bridge over the Spray is just completed and looks very well; it was manufactured by the Peterborough Bridge Co., Ontario, and was put up by Mr. J. J. Ryan of that place. Visitors now will be able to cross over to, by far, the most beautiful part of the Park, and which up to the present time was almost inaccessible. Passing over the bridge and going up the east side of the valley of the Spray one comes upon a succession of beautiful terraces, forming some of the finest natural building sites for private residences that could be found anywhere. As you mount from a succession of some of the most lovely views that can be found in the world, each succeeding one appearing to be more beautiful than the last. Sometimes you come upon a full view of the Bow river falls and U. P. R. hotel, with Castle Mountain in the distance, then to your right from another point you will see the valley of the Bow running north, dotted with its islands, and the Devil's Head Mountain. Again turning to the west you will see the clear sparkling waters of the Spray dashing along some hundreds of feet below you on its way to mingle its waters with the Bow. All of this most beautiful portion of the Park will be made of easy access by a winding road that Mr. Stewart proposes building next summer, and will connect with another running by the east of the Spray, both turning one of the most lovely drives imaginable. A little north of the east end of the bridge is a most charming spot in full view of the falls, the meadow of the waters, and the valley of the Bow. Here Mr. Stewart proposed building a residence for himself, but when Mr. Van Horne came here lately he felt so much in love with the place that Mr. Stewart handed over his right to him, and he intends erecting a handsome residence there, and it is said that several wealthy Montreals will follow his example and build on the same neighborhood.

At the adjourned inquest on the body of Lizzie Parker, held in Toronto, the jury returned a verdict that she died of heart disease, accelerated by attempted abortion at the hands of persons unknown.
